EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This State Annual Report for Federal Fiscal Year (FFY) 2008/09 contains information on the activities conducted by the State of California under the Edward Byrne Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) Program. The California Emergency Management Agency (Cal EMA), administers this funding through the Anti-Drug Abuse (ADA) Enforcement Program, the CrackDown Multi-Community Task Force Program, the Campaign Against Marijuana Planting, the Public Safety Procurement Program, and the California Courts Protective Order Registry Program.

California continues to concentrate state and local drug enforcement efforts on the investigation, apprehension, prosecution and incarceration of drug and violent crime offenders. Through the use of the multi-jurisdictional and multi-component model, a collaborative and comprehensive approach has been achieved to target offenders and prosecute them through the criminal justice system.

All 58 counties in California receive funds, on a non-competitive basis, to implement the ADA Enforcement Program. To apply for these funds applicants must prepare a countywide plan, utilizing a cooperative, collaborative, multi-disciplinary approach to address illegal drugs and violence in their communities.

Although projects are required to report assets seized and forfeited as project income, it could be several years for the adjudication process to be completed and the income made available to the agency to expend. Consequently, expenditure reporting may not accurately reflect that which was reported as income. Projects are required, however, to report any income or expenditures quarterly via the Project Income Reporting Transmittal (Cal EMA Form 234). In this fashion, project income is tracked and reported per federal requirements.

This report addresses the linkage of California's ADA Enforcement Program with the goals of the National Drug Control Strategy. Coordination of activities between federal, state and local agencies is also discussed and is evident in several of the programs funded during FFY 2008/09, such as the CA Department of Justice (DOJ), Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement (BNE) Crackdown Multi-Community Project and the Multi-jurisdictional Drug Task Forces.

Of particular note in this report are the program accomplishments for the ADA Enforcement Program. During this reporting period, 7,958 drug offenders were arrested and 3,408 were convicted of drug and violent crimes.

Marijuana gardens continue to present a problem for California law enforcement. During this reporting period, the Campaign Against Marijuana Planting (CAMP) raided 665 marijuana gardens, destroying more than 4,463,917 marijuana plants with an estimated street value of $17.8 billion.

These accomplishments would not have been achieved without the resources provided through the Edward Byrne Justice Assistance Grant Program. However, the biggest accomplishment of the use of these funds has been the collaboration it has fostered between the various participants in the criminal justice community.

I. INTRODUCTION

This State Annual Report for Federal Fiscal Year (FFY) 2008/09 describes California's Drug Control Strategy and statewide efforts under the Edward Byrne Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) Program.

During FFY 2008/09, all 58 counties in California were allocated funds under the Anti-Drug Abuse (ADA) Enforcement Program. This state and local drug enforcement effort concentrates on the investigation, apprehension, prosecution, and incarceration of street-level, mid-level and major drug traffickers.

The ADA Program targets all state and federal drug and drug-related crimes and acts of violence related to drug possession, production, manufacturing, sale, trafficking, smuggling and profiteering. The flexibility within JAG to determine appropriate strategies and enforcement measures at the local level has allowed counties to address their unique drug and violent crime problems accordingly.

The ADA Program model involves law enforcement, prosecution and probation in a collaborative process for targeting offenders through the criminal justice system. Program titles have been developed to address a specific plan of action targeting a selected offender group.

California continues to tackle the challenges of drugs and violent crime by developing comprehensive strategies. These strategies include the following:

- Support the multi-agency, collaborative approach in each participating county, using multi-jurisdictional task forces in direct support of the National Drug Control Strategy;
- Target street-level to major drug offenders using the regional and local task force approach. Several task forces are headed by the California Department of Justice (DOJ), Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement (BNE), and supported by multiple local jurisdictions; and
- Expand cross-agency coordination of federal, state, and local agencies to eradicate marijuana cultivation, and to apprehend and prosecute cultivators and traffickers.

To understand the problems that California's Drug Control Strategy addresses, one needs to take into consideration the size and diversity of the state and its criminal justice system. California is the 3rd largest state by land area (after Alaska and Texas) with 235 people per square mile. The state is broken into 58 counties with over 90% of the population residing in urban areas.

California's criminal justice system is equally large. As of the latest available data (2007 trend data), from the Office of the Attorney General, Criminal Justice Statistics Center, the law enforcement agencies throughout the state include:

- 337 police department with 39,753 sworn officers/agents;
- 58 county sheriff's departments with 29,146 sworn deputies;
- 58 county probation department with 9,891 sworn officers; and
- 140 highway patrol offices with 7,469 sworn officers.

Each of the state's 58 counties has an elected district attorney and, in most counties, a public defender. In counties that do not have a public defender, a private attorney appointed by the court or the Legal Aid Society provides indigent services.

The court system in California is comprised of a supreme court with one chief justice and six associate justices; six districts of the state Courts of Appeal with 105 appellate justices; and 1,500 trial court judges (including 380 commissioners and 35 referees) throughout 58 counties.

At the California state level, there are four major criminal justice agencies, departments, or offices that provide separate and distinct services. They are the California Attorney General's Office, the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR), and the California Highway Patrol (CHP), and the California Emergency Management Agency (Cal EMA).

The state's primary law enforcement agency is the California Attorney General's Office, which includes California's Department of Justice (DOJ). The California Constitution establishes the California Attorney General (AG) as an elected official responsible for ensuring that state laws are uniformly and adequately enforced. The AG carries out his constitutional responsibilities through the DOJ programs. To support California's local law enforcement community, the AG coordinates statewide narcotic enforcement efforts, participates in criminal investigations, and provides identification, information services, and telecommunications support. These activities are carried out through the AG's Division of Law Enforcement and Division of Criminal Justice Information Services. These divisions include six major bureaus for investigations, forensic services, narcotic enforcement, criminal identification, criminal information and analysis, and the Western States Information Network (WSIN).

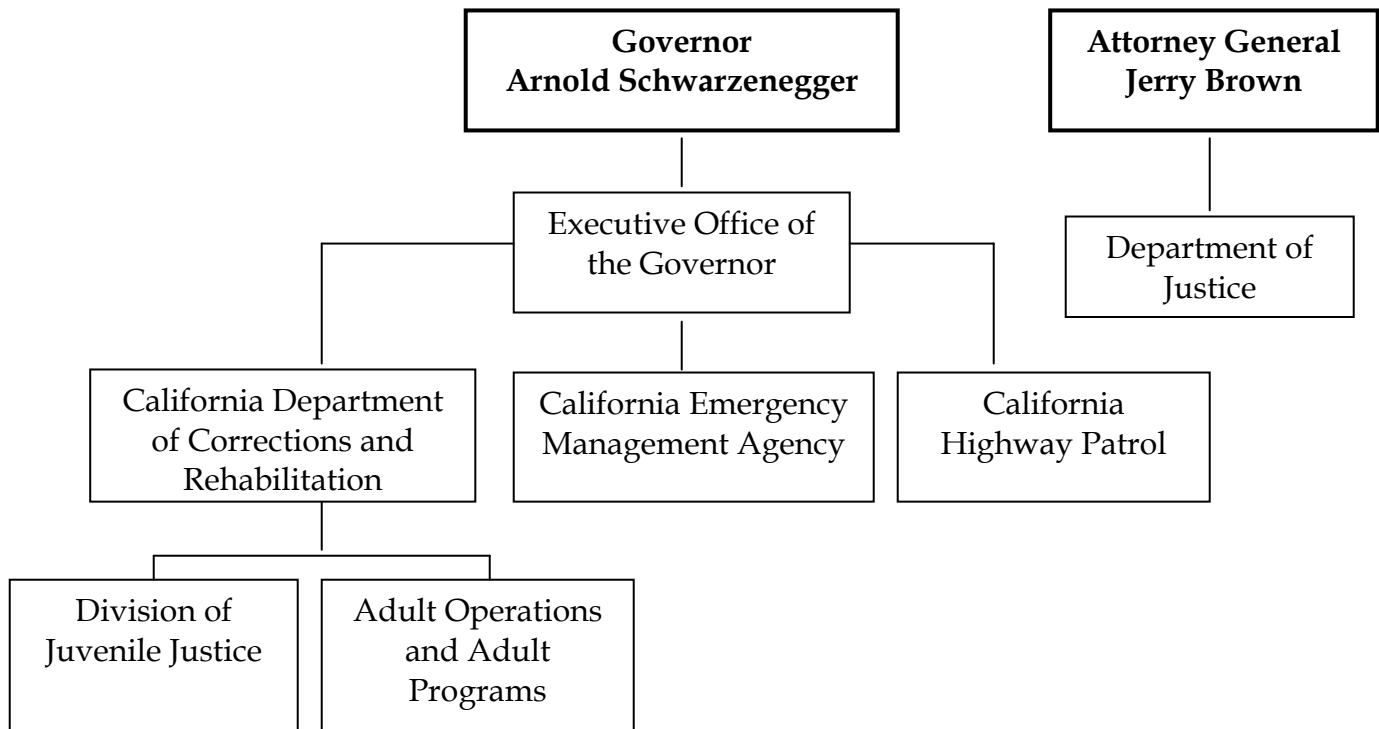

Reporting to the Executive Office of the Governor, the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) is responsible for the overall planning and administration of the state's correctional facilities. The Adult Operations and Adult Programs and the Division of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) are responsible for the management of the state's adult and youth institutions. This responsibility extends to re-entry centers, camps, community correctional facilities, residential drug treatment programs, and parole offices. As of November 30, 2009, CDCR's prison population for all institutions was 167,439 inmates, and the number of parolees was 137,569; and DJJ's juvenile population was 3,493 wards, and 1,713 wards were on parolee.

The next major California law enforcement agency is the California Highway Patrol (CHP), whose primary mission is the management and regulation of traffic to achieve safe, lawful, and efficient use of the highway transportation system. As a secondary mission, the CHP supports local law enforcement, in its role as a major statewide law enforcement agency, and has consistently proven capable of assisting in emergencies that exceed local capabilities. As a public service agency, the CHP provides disaster and life-saving assistance, protection services for the Governor and our State Capitol, as well as responding to all 911/emergency assistance calls received from State buildings in the downtown Sacramento area.

In addition to being the SAA for the JAG funds, Cal EMA serves as the lead state agency for emergency management in California. To ensure the most effective use of all resources for dealing with any emergency, Cal EMA makes every effort to include government at all levels, businesses, community-based organizations, and volunteers into this process. Cal EMA works to ensure the state is ready and able to mitigate against, prepare for, respond to, and recover from the effects of emergencies, including terrorism, that threaten lives, property, and the environment. By Legislative authority, the Director of Cal EMA's Office of Grants Management also acts as the Executive Secretary of the California Council on Criminal Justice.

California Criminal Justice Organizations

Purpose of the California Emergency Management Agency, Public Safety and Victim Services Division

Within Cal EMA, the Public Safety and Victim Services Division is responsible for formulating the Governor's allocation plan for California's criminal justice agencies, local victim services programs, schools, community-based organizations, community crime prevention programs, and training programs for prosecutors and public defenders. Under Cal EMA, the Public Safety and Victim Services Division provides leadership and direction in implementing the plan by:

- providing grant funding to state and local units of government and private, nonprofit organizations;
- supporting the development of state-of-the-art approaches for the criminal justice system and victim service programs;
- providing technical assistance to ensure effective program management;
- disseminating information on successful model programs, and current and emerging research findings;
- promoting interdisciplinary information exchange and support between criminal and juvenile justice agencies, and public and private organizations; and
- developing publications on crime prevention, crime suppression, victimology, and victim services for statewide distribution.

CALIFORNIA DRUG CONTROL PROGRAM OVERVIEW

As the State Administering Agency (SAA), Cal EMA is responsible for linking programs to the priorities and goals described below. These goals are intentionally global and consistent with Cal EMA's focus on continuous program improvement.

Cal EMA continues to align its activities with national priorities in response to violent crimes and drug trafficking. This conveys California's continuing commitment to improving community and police relationships to prevent crime. As such, the following are the goals for California's Drug Control Strategy.

Law Enforcement Programs: Cal EMA dedicates Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) Program monies to fund local level multi-jurisdictional, multi-disciplinary task force programs to:

- reduce drug trafficking, violent crime and related activities;
- disrupt the importation, manufacture and distribution of illicit drugs;
- eradicate marijuana gardens on public and private lands;
- reduce the number of weapons being transported across California's borders for illegal activities;
- dismantle the trafficking organizations that commit these crimes; and
- remove children from illicit drug environments.

EMERGING TRENDS

Cal EMA has identified three emerging trends that are being researched and discussed with the field as they relate to drugs and violent crimes. The three trends are: Human Trafficking, Firearms Trafficking, and Prescription Drug Abuse.

Human Trafficking

According to the U.S. State Department, an estimated 600,000 to 820,000 individuals are trafficked across international borders each year. Of these trafficked individuals, close to 90 percent (90%) are women and children. It is estimated that California is amongst the top three states in the nation for human trafficking.

The State's extensive international border, its major harbors and airports, powerful economy and industries, accelerating population, and large immigrant base make it a prime target for traffickers. Apart from the harm that human trafficking causes its victims, the infrastructure that is necessary to support this heinous crime can also serve the needs of terrorists wishing to smuggle themselves and/or dangerous weapons into the country.

The link between human trafficking and other criminal activities such as human smuggling, drug trafficking, money laundering and organized crime, increases the potential for other violent crimes. The U.S. State Department reports that the impact of human trafficking on surrounding communities includes increased crime and gang activity, child exploitation, public health problems, and depressed wages. This link is a primary reason the Cal EMA has identified Human Trafficking as an emerging trend that will be addressed.

Firearms Trafficking

The escalation of violent crime and firearms trafficking along the U.S.-Mexico border is a serious threat to public safety. Criminal organizations operating along the border rely upon readily accessible black market sources where weapons are bought, sold, and traded. However, weapons legally purchased in the U.S. are also being trafficked across the border. Most of the firearms violence in Mexico is perpetrated by drug-trafficking organizations (DTOs) who are vying for control of drug trafficking routes to the United States and engaging in turf battles for disputed distribution territories. DTOs operating in Mexico rely on firearms suppliers to enforce and maintain their illicit narcotics operations. Intelligence indicates these criminal organizations have tasked their money-laundering, distribution, and transportation infrastructures with reaching into the United States to acquire firearms and ammunition. These Mexican DTO infrastructures have become the leading gun-trafficking organizations operating in the southwest United States.

According to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF), during the past three years, more than 1,000 firearms confiscated from drug cartel members, or recovered at drug cartel related crime scenes in Mexico, have been traced back to California. California remains a significant, accessible, and exploitable route for traffickers wishing to transport illegal cargo into or out of Mexico. For these reasons, the Cal EMA has identified Firearms Trafficking as another emerging trend that will be addressed.

Prescription Drug Abuse

The non-medical use or abuse of prescription drugs remains a serious public health concern. According to a research report published by the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) there are three classes of prescription drugs that are most commonly abused:

- Opioids – most often prescribed to treat pain – examples include: codeine, oxycodone (OxyContin and Percocet), and morphine (Kadian and Avinza);
- Central nervous system (CNS) depressants – used to treat anxiety and sleep disorders – examples include: barbiturates (Mebaral and Nembutal) and benzodiazepines (Valium and Xanax); and

- Stimulants – prescribed to treat narcolepsy, attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD), and obesity – examples include: dextroamphetamine (Dexedrine and Adderall) and methylphenidate (Ritalin and Concerta).

Although marijuana is the most commonly abused drug, prescription drugs are the second most common and fall just ahead of cocaine, heroin, methamphetamine, and other drugs. Prescription drug abuse poses a unique challenge because of the need to balance prevention, education, and enforcement, with the need for legitimate access to these controlled substances. Because of the complexities of this problem, the Cal EMA has identified Prescription Drug Abuse as another trend that needs to be addressed.

SUMMARY OF JOINT PROGRAM COORDINATION EFFORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Coordination of the JAG funds and activities with other state agencies receiving federal funds optimizes the use of federal, state, and local resources. During this reporting period; Cal EMA, in collaboration with other state and federal agencies, continued to focus on enhancing public safety and improving the quality of life for the residents of California. At the state level, these agencies include the Department of Alcohol and Drug Programs (ADP), DOJ, CDCR, the Administrative Office of the Courts, and the CHP.

Other Joint Planning and Funding Efforts

Cal EMA continues to promote active partnerships between federal and state agencies, local government, community-based organizations, and private citizens. Federal agencies that continue to work jointly and effectively with state and local agencies within California include:

- Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives
- Bureau of Land Management
- Department of Defense
- Drug Enforcement Administration
- Federal Bureau of Investigation
- Federal Bureau of Justice Assistance
- General Services Administration
- Office of National Drug Control Policy
- U.S. Attorney's Office
- U.S. Coast Guard
- U.S. Customs and Border Protection
- U.S. Forest Service
- U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement
- U.S. Marshal's Service
- U.S. Secret Service

California Public Safety Procurement Program/ aka Counter Drug Procurement Program

During this reporting period, the agencies eligible to access equipment through the federal government procurement system under the 1033 and 1122 Procurement Programs was expanded (see below). In order to more accurately reflect this change therefore, the name of the Counter Drug Procurement Program was changed to the California Public Safety Procurement Program (CPSPP). However, the 1033 and 1122 Programs continue to be implemented by Cal EMA under the new program name.

1033 (Free) Procurement Program:

The CPSPP was established to assist local Law Enforcement Agencies (LEA's) in obtaining excess federal property from the U.S. Department of Defense (DOD). Specifically, Section 1208 of the 1990 National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) allowed LEA's to screen and obtain excess DOD property in support of counter-drug and counter-terrorism activities. The property is made available to the LEA's at no expense except for the cost of transportation.

Although counter-drug and counter-terrorism activities remained the primary focus for the use of the excess federal property, Section 1033 of the 1996 NDAA superseded the previous language and slightly relaxed this restriction. Usage was redefined to expand the eligibility to access this property to "law enforcement activities, with preference given to counter-drug and counter-terrorism".

There are currently four hundred thirty (430) California LEA's participating in the 1033 Program. During FY 2008/09, the LEA's screened and received over $22M worth of excess property through this program. Since the inception of the 1208/1033 program in 1995, California LEA's have acquired over $370M worth of equipment.

1122 (Buy) Procurement Program (Counter Drug, Homeland Security and Emergency Response):

The authority for the 1122 Program was derived from the National Defense Authorization Act of 1994, Section 1122. This section allowed State and local governmental agencies the opportunity to maximize their use of taxpayer dollars by taking advantage of the purchasing power of the Federal Government to receive discounts commensurate with large volume purchases through the federal government procurement system for counter drug activities.

The 1122 Program was amended in the 2009 National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) to expand the procurement authority beyond equipment restricted to counter-drug activities, and avail the same equipment to agencies conducting homeland security and emergency response activities.

Since inception, the 1122 program has assisted LEA's in acquiring more than $40.8M worth of new equipment. By purchasing equipment through Federal 1122 sources, California's participating LEA's realized of savings of $13M.

The CPSPP continue to support California's Public Safety community with these cost effective programs which pay incredible dividends to citizens throughout the state.

Impact of Reduction in Federal Funding

The enforcement of drug laws in California is seriously affected by the vastness and diversity of its demographics and geographic regions. California has a large landmass; shares a border with Mexico; has a long coastline with many ports of entry; has mountains, deserts, large open areas, many freeways (including I-5) and several major metropolitan areas with large concentrations of people; vast rural areas that are lightly populated; and many airports (both large and small).

Economically, the state runs the gamut from extremely rich to extremely poor. Southern California and the Silicon Valley are areas of affluence, while small logging towns in Northern California are on the verge of disaster as lumber mills have closed down. Local law enforcement deals with the cocaine problem for the rich; while for the poor, the drug of choice is methamphetamine, the poor man's cocaine. The cultivation of marijuana brings in money to the poor northern counties, as well as some rural southern counties.

Drugs play a major role in many illegal activities throughout California including terrorism, drug trafficking organizations, street/prison gangs, etc. Proceeds from illicit drug sales fund drug-related activities and violent crimes, terrorist groups, gangs, and some property crimes. Cocaine, heroin, methamphetamine, and marijuana are smuggled into the state from Mexico, in addition to methamphetamine and marijuana being produced or cultivated in large quantities within the state.

Most drug traffickers/organizations are poly-drug traffickers rather than specializing in one type of drug. Many in law enforcement believe that the same people who have been bringing cocaine, heroin, and methamphetamine to our communities are now bringing marijuana. San Diego and Imperial counties remain a principal transshipment zone for a variety of drugs smuggled by Mexican Drug Trafficking Organizations (DTOs), and Mexican DTOs have been linked to large indoor and outdoor marijuana grows throughout the state of California, the profits from which support methamphetamine trafficking.

Since the passage of Proposition 215 in California, in 1996, people with medical conditions are relatively free to smoke, possess and grow marijuana as long as they have a doctor's recommendation. For everyone else, it's still illegal, but much of society seems to regard marijuana as an entirely different drug than cocaine, methamphetamine or heroin. In California, possession of under an ounce of marijuana is a misdemeanor that carries a $100 fine. However, all marijuana is not grown for medicinal purposes. California's rural counties are prime for establishing clandestine drug labs and for the cultivation of marijuana. Over the past decade, marijuana gardens hidden on California's private and public lands have grown in size and number.

According to the Drug Enforcement Administration, many marijuana gardens discovered in the Silicon Valley, Central Valley and Northern California have been linked to Mexican DTOs. These criminal syndicates act as a "command and control" structure for marijuana operations, and they control most wholesale marijuana distribution throughout the US. There are different theories about why Mexican drug traffickers are now growing marijuana on California soil in such large quantities. Some say it's because law enforcement's efforts to shut down methamphetamine labs in California by restricting the sale of the chemicals needed to make the drug have left a criminal "workforce" without work. While others believe that clampdowns at the U.S./Mexican border have made smuggling the drug harder, making it more practical to grow it here.

As previously stated, due to California's close proximity to Mexico, coupled with the growing Hispanic population, law enforcement agencies and drug task forces must deal with the escalating methamphetamine problem, as Mexican Drug Trafficking Organizations (DTOs) have gained dominance in methamphetamine manufacturing and distribution. As a result, the enforcement of drugs in California cannot focus on one specific area in the state to solve its diverse drug problem, and instead must focus in varying areas and at different levels of operation.

Clandestine laboratories range from "superlabs" capable of producing 10 pounds or more of finished product per cook to numerous small-scale laboratories yielding only nominal user quantities. Most of the "superlabs" in California are operated by DTOs. In response to increased law enforcement pressure, the number of methamphetamine "superlabs" is declining, as the labs are being moved elsewhere. However, methamphetamine availability is not likely to decline in the near term and, in fact; Mexican DTOs can maintain production levels at laboratories in Mexico necessary to offset any declines in domestic production to ensure a steady supply of the drug in established markets and to facilitate further eastward expansion of methamphetamine distribution.

The manufacture of methamphetamine also has a severe impact on the environment. The production of one pound of methamphetamine releases poisonous gas into the atmosphere and creates 5 to 7 pounds of toxic waste. Many lab operators dump the toxic waste down household drains, on public lands and forests, in fields and yards, and along rural roads.

During FFY 2008/09, every region in the State of California reported both marijuana and methamphetamine as the most prevalent drugs. Federal funding is critical to the success of California's drug enforcement efforts. The consolidation of the Byrne Memorial Block Grant funds with the Local Law Enforcement Block Grant program into the Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) program, and the drastic reduction in the federal appropriation has severely impacted California's law enforcement agencies and compromised their ability to effectively combat the scourge of methamphetamine, other drugs, and the protection of California's citizens and communities. In fact, some of the previously funded projects could not be continued at their already reduced operating level, while other projects were eliminated entirely during FFY 2008/09 despite the increased need for drug enforcement throughout the state.

Finally, the presence of children at narcotic scenes is a growing problem and concern in the State of California. The Cal EMA requires every agency applying for funding to show the existence of a drug endangered children (DEC) program in their county that includes, but is not limited to, the following:

- protocols for a multi-agency response to cases involving children;
- a multi-agency team consisting of law enforcement, prosecution, and health or children's services personnel to respond to drug-endangered child cases;
- coordinated medical treatment and family services for drug-endangered children under the direction of a child services worker; and
- written policies and standards for response to a narcotics crime scene where a child is present or when there is evidence that a child lives at the scene.

Such multi-agency efforts would be impossible without continued federal funding to assist local law enforcement in making California a safe place to live.

II. EVALUATION PLAN AND ACTIVITIES

All program titles under the ADA Program are subject to reporting, monitoring, and evaluation in accordance with federal and Cal EMA mandates. Projects funded through this program must:

- Collect and report descriptive data in numerical and narrative form, including anecdotal data, on a quarterly basis. This documentation forms the basis by which program effectiveness is analyzed as it relates to activities which support each program objective;
- Discuss project objectives and activities with Cal EMA program staff prior to and during regularly scheduled on-site visits;
- Participate in and/or conduct process and/or outcome evaluations for their specific projects. The SAA will facilitate and fund such evaluations; and
- Make available all data maintained for substantiating project performance, which will be used during evaluations of the entire program. The analysis of this data forms the basis for modifying, strengthening, revising, and improving program performance.

Programmatic Oversight

The Drug Enforcement Section, consisting of one manager and five specialists, is responsible for the programmatic oversight of JAG funded programs. These specialists are responsible for the day-to-day administration of the sub-grants as well as conducting annual site visits and technical assistance to projects to aid them in meeting their project objectives. The specialists also review all statistical and narrative documentation that supports achievement of program objectives.

Monitoring Function

The Cal EMA is responsible for conducting limited scope, on-site programmatic and fiscal reviews and assessments of recipients' level of compliance with federal and state program requirements, mandates, and guidelines. Cal EMA monitors perform both the programmatic and fiscal components of the monitoring. The unit conducts approximately 100 monitoring visits annually.

Administrative, programmatic and fiscal findings identified during the monitoring are documented in a "monitoring report." The monitoring reports are forwarded to both recipients and the Cal EMA program staff responsible for their oversight. Recipients are permitted six months to address each of the findings identified in the monitoring report via a "corrective action plan." This document details the manner in which all findings will be corrected and the methods the recipient will employ in order to prevent future recurrences. Program staff will be instrumental in the development of corrective action plans by providing guidance and technical assistance to the recipients.

Program staff will conduct follow-up site visits in order to determine whether findings identified in the monitoring report have been resolved and corrective action plans have been implemented. These steps ensure that requirements described in the sub-grant award agreement have been met, and that recipients have complied with all federal and state program requirements, mandates and guidelines. This element of the evaluation process further validates whether services delivered through project activities have met the needs of the community and/or targeted population.

Multi-Jurisdictional Drug Task Forces Impact/Outcome Evaluation

In July 2003, the Office of Criminal Justice Planning (OCJP) published an impact/outcome evaluation of the Byrne-funded multi-jurisdictional drug task forces in California. Multi-jurisdictional drug task forces operate in all of California's 58 counties, with the majority of their funds coming from the JAG. This evaluation focused on the examination of how the multi-jurisdictional task forces use their resources to impact local drug problems. This evaluation outlines the various types of multi-jurisdictional task forces operating in California, and it contains both a process and an outcome/impact evaluation of their activities.

A copy of the Evaluation of Multi-Jurisdictional Drug Task Forces in California was provided with the 2002/03 State Annual report.

III. SUMMARY OF PROGRAMS, PERFORMANCE MEASURES, EVALUATION METHODS, AND IMPACTS

Introduction and Overview

Anti-Drug Abuse Enforcement Program

The ADA Program funded a total of 58 task forces during this reporting period. As in past years, all of California's 58 counties received funding on a non-competitive application basis with each receiving a base award of $115,000. The remaining funds were allocated by formula using the county's percentage of the statewide crime index. All projects continued to select a target population group, target area, and specific level of offender as part of each project's design. Program titles correspond to federally authorized program purpose areas that form the basis of the National Drug Control Strategy.

CrackDown Multi-Community Task Force Program

The California Department of Justice, Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement (BNE), CrackDown Multi-Community Task Force (BN) Program, pursuant to Public Law in 2005, is responsible for combating inter-jurisdictional and intra-state drug trafficking focusing on methamphetamine, cocaine, marijuana, and the diversion of legal drugs.

The BNE CrackDown Program efforts concentrate on targeting drug offenders within the Colombia cocaine cartels, California street gangs, and Mexican drug trafficking organizations providing smuggling routes through Mexico and California.

The CrackDown Program complements the Anti-Drug Abuse Enforcement Program by supporting local multi-agency drug enforcement teams with Special Agents from the BNE. The BNE provides support to local drug enforcement teams with resources, equipment, and jurisdiction which would be lacking in the absence of this program.

Campaign Against Marijuana Planting Program

The Department of Justice's Campaign Against Marijuana Planting (CAMP) Program, pursuant to Public Law in 2005, is a unique multi-agency law enforcement task force comprised of local, state and federal agencies organized expressly to eradicate marijuana cultivation and trafficking in California. CAMP has five eradication teams along with four contracted helicopters to supplement and assist the eradication efforts of 48 county sheriff's departments, California State Parks, United States Forest Services, and the Bureau of Land Management.

California Courts Protective Order Registry Program

The California Courts Protective Order Registry Program (CalCPORP) is intended for the Judicial Council, Administrative Office of the Courts, to continue the development of an automated system to track all protective and restraining orders. A protective and/or restraining order is a court order that can protect persons from being physically abused, threatened, stalked or harassed by others. Protective and restraining orders included, Criminal Protective Orders, Domestic Violence Restraining Orders, Civil Harassment Restraining Orders, Elder and Dependent Adult Abuse Restraining Orders and Workplace Violence Restraining Orders.

There are three goals for this program: 1) To provide the trial courts in all 58 counties access to the CalCPORP database, empowering the bench officers to make more informed decisions and avoid issuing conflicting orders; 2) To improve public safety and the safety of law enforcement officers by improving access to more accurate, complete and up-to-date information about protective orders; and 3) To automate the exchange of information between the courts and the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS).

Successful Projects – Marin County

In January of 2009, a narcotics investigation was initiated into the distribution of cocaine throughout the Bay Area. The investigation began as a result of a compliance search conducted by the Coordination of Probation Enforcement (COPE) Unit where the probationer was found to be in possession of 8 ounces of cocaine. The investigation continued through June of 2009. During the investigation approximately 2 kilos of cocaine were purchased from several members of the same drug trafficking organization (DTO). As a result, 11 search warrants were conducted and 10 subjects were arrested in conjunction with the investigation. Additional narcotics, associated paraphernalia, and weapons were located and seized.

In March 2009, the COPE Unit assisted the Marin County Major Crimes Task Force with an investigation that led to the seizure of approximately 6 kilos of cocaine, 1600 capsules of “Molly” (MDMA), and one pound of marijuana. Along with the narcotics, approximately $492,000 cash was seized.

Mariposa County

In June of 2009, Mariposa County law enforcement officers destroyed two young marijuana gardens. They arrested a Mexican national at the second garden site and destroyed 2,191 young plants. At the first site, nine plots of marijuana were eliminated in the Stanislaus National Forest, with a total of 7,479 plants destroyed. Over the last year, Mariposa County eradicated 93,498 marijuana plants, with an estimated street value at $233,745,000.

Shasta County

On February 12, 2009, Shasta County’s Domestic Highway Enforcement (DHE) agents stopped a vehicle traveling northbound on Interstate 5 near the Bay Bridge off ramp north of Redding. Acting on a K-9 alert, agents located a hidden compartment inside the trunk of the vehicle. Inside this compartment was 13 kilograms of cocaine. The driver was arrested.

Shasta County (contd.)

February 20, 2009, DHE agents stopped a vehicle traveling southbound on Interstate 5 near Oasis Road (in Glenn County). After agents obtained consent to search the vehicle, a firearm was located in the trunk, along with a safe containing $99,550 in U.S. currency. Agents also seized 2.3 grams of cocaine base and 18.4 grams of marijuana. The driver admitted to owning the firearm since he possessed a concealed weapons permit from the State of Washington, however he denied ownership of the money.

Sonoma County

On July 31, 2009, the Sheriff's Narcotics Unit completed a week long operation with the assistance of the California Department of Justice, "Campaign Against Marijuana Planting" (CAMP). During this operation 20 agents were airlifted into remote garden sites in the Annapolis, Cazadero, and Salmon Creek areas to destroy and remove marijuana plants. The joint operation resulted in the eradication of 62,000 marijuana plants from the coastal area of Sonoma County, with an estimated street value of $1.8 million. Plants ranged from 2 to 4 feet in height, and the gardens ranged from several hundred plants to several thousand plants. Multiple campsites were also located indicating that Mexican Drug Trafficking Organizations (DTOs) continue to finance and support these grow operations.

On December 4, 2008, Sonoma County Sheriff's Department and Marin County Sheriff's Department conducted a Buy-Bust operation in the Sonoma Valley area that was two months in the making. They served simultaneous search warrants at three separate residences for sales of methamphetamine and cocaine. Four people were arrested and a pound of both methamphetamine and cocaine were seized. Starting in October, detectives arranged more than six deals to buy methamphetamine and cocaine, purchasing about a pound of cocaine and a half-pound of methamphetamine. These detectives were able to directly identify the persons involved in those transactions and the locations connected to the distribution of these substances by these individuals. Forty-four law enforcement officers participated in the operations.
